IF&W wants to 'reclaim' Overset Pond

By MICHAEL DANIELS

By next spring, anglers who make the trek in to Greenwood's Overset Pond may be casting their lines over much-improved populations of brook and brown trout, and perhaps even some rainbows.

But the cost of achieving that state of affairs will be the eradication of all fish life currently in the 21-acre pond.

In a move not seen here for nearly three decades, the Maine Inland Fisheries and Wildlife Department is proposing to "reclaim" the pond this fall by applying the poison

By late the following spring, the poison will be gone (it breaks down naturally) and so will all the fish. The pond will then be restocked with trout.

"Where we use this technique is basically waters that have become populated with fish species that compete extensively with species we're trying to manage for, usually trout of some sort, brook trout typically, but sometimes browns or other species," said IF&W fisheries biologist John Boland.

The aim, he said, "is to get rid of competing species such as suckers, Process involves poisoning fish currently in pond; restocking with brook, brown, perhaps rainbow trout.

sunfish, bass or pickerels. "In Overset's case, we've got huge populations of suckers and golden shiners and lesser populations of other species of fish: hornpout, pumkinseeds, sunfish and two or three other species of minnows," Boland said. Eliminating the competition allows the more desirable species to thrive, but the process does not always work as planned.

The last local lake to be reclaimed was Lake Christopher, which was treated in 1969 -- but, said local bait and supply dealer Ken Mason "there's still everything in there. There's suckers and pickerel. It's hard to reclaim a big pond."

Everything is still there, Mason added, except the brown trout, sometimes up to five or six pounders, that were in the lake prior to the reclamation, but have not been re-stocked since.

Overset Pond is less than a tenth the size of Lake Christopher, but the brown trout in the little mountain pond can also run to five or six pounds, according to Mason.

Despite the occasional large catch, however, Boland said that neither the brown nor brook trout populations in Overset are doing as well as IF&W would like.

"We stock the brook trout and the brown trout each year," he said. "The brook trout we stock in the spring, and if you go up there fishing in the springtime, you will experience pretty good trout fishing, although those are mostly trout that we've just put in.

"But we're not seeing the growth or holdover ability of the brook trout to where we'd like to see it. If we go back in there in September, we'll see some brook trout, but they'll be a little bit on the lean side. We'd like to see some trout that hold over from year to year -so that instead of getting all 12-inch trout, every once in a while you get one that's 16 or 17.

"Browns will do a little bit better under more competition," Boland said, "and for that reason we have seen the brown trout fare a little bit better up there. They will feed more extensively on minnow species, other forage species like suckers, sunfish and minnows -- but still, what it all boils down to is that any pond, whether it's a little 20-acre mountain pond or a large lake, can support only so much fish flesh, and by eliminating some of the competition, most of that productivity will be funneled into providing and growing trout."

Local business strong during summer of '98

Despite a soggy start and a jittery stock market, the summer just ended was apparently a robust one for most businesses in the Bethel

"It was a great summer, with the exception of a couple of specialty realty stores," said Robin Zinchuk, executive director for the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce.

Lodging, campgrounds restaurants were particularly busy, benefiting from the pipeliners and National Laboratories clients, said Zinchuk.

And the chamber's reservation service, she said, "did double the reservations we did last year" in August."

The bounty was reflected at the River View Resort in Bethel.

"It was fabulous," said manager Rene McGrew of her summer business in general. "We had a lot of reservations this summer -- and a ton of walk-ins. It would be 9 or 10 o'clock at night and they'd pull into the driveway."

In fact, she said, the number of people taking rooms on the spur of the moment seemed greater than last year. They filled what appeared to be somewhat of a gap left by international visitors.

"Last summer there were more international guests," said McGrew. She has only been managing the resort since a year ago July, so she can't compare this summer to all of last summer. But, she said, "This August was busier than last August. There were a lot of people from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

At the Maine House in Bryant Pond, owner Tim Halloran estimated the number of his guests to be roughly 20 percent more than last year.

His business is more predictable, because it is made up mostly of groups that book three to 12 months

Tranquility lost

one guy who's going to do everything," he said. Such balance means the other teams can't target one player to shut down during a game, he said. The balance is indicated by the choice of four players to serve as co-captains. Those four, all seniors, are Jason Rosenberg (forward)

Jason Poirier (forward), Chris Vaughan (midfielder) and Jeremy Curley (midfielder). Forward Ramsey Harrington and defensemen Matt Hiebert and Jeff Chandler round out the seniors on While Raymond is inheriting the team, he also knows them well himself -- he coached all of them in middle school, where he served as varsity coach for four years.

"They have good attitudes. We have potential. Whether or not we perform -- that will be the key to the season," said Raymond.

CONTROL IS THE SOLUTION

To the Editor:

We are property owners on North Pond and had planned on attending the meeting on Sept. 2, but my husband was forced to have emergency surgery on Sept. 1.

Nonetheless, we would still like to be heard. We also are owners of "jet skis" and boats and have enjoyed North Pond for many years. We have four children, and we all enjoy our weekends and vacations in Maine. We think it would be foolish to discontinue use of "jet skis" on North Pond. That's the reason (or one of the reasons) we bought land here -- so we could enjoy the land and water as a family. "Jet skis," when being used properly, are not dangerous to people or our waters. I do agree there should be some control of the use of them -- ex: age, the hours of use and the distance on how close you should be from shore.

But doing away with them is not the answer here -- control is the

BLOWN OUT OF PROPORTION

To the Editor:

In response to the letter in the Sept. 3 edition of The Citizen, we have a few things to say. Sometimes it amazes us how people can blow things out of proportion. We can't help but think that if someone had a family activity that was safe (because it is made safe) and enjoyable, and it was threatened to be banned, that they wouldn't do something to stop it. It's obvious that some people can't stand change and will go to any length to stop it. Change is inevitable. We could easily find something different to do as a family, but we enjoy what we are doing. We follow all the regulations and make less wake and noise than most of the ski boats on lakes today.

We attended the meeting in Woodstock on Wednesday, Sept. 2, and were glad to see at least some "anti-ban people" there. We feel that a ban is not the answer to the problem at hand. Strict regulations and policing of those regulations, in our opinion, is the answer. The wardens will have to enforce a ban, just as they could enforce the rules now. Less money would be spent if they just dealt with individual cases rather than an all-out ban. The video shown at the meeting presented no wrongdoing on the part of the "jet skis" or the boats, canoes, sailboats, etc. It was just an attempt to stack the deck. But it backfired. Mr. DeNormandie contradicted every one of the statistics presented. We applaud Mr. DeNormandie for researching and presenting the "real" facts on jet ski safety. It must be difficult being a minority on the Lakes As-

We have been harassed, just because we are "jet ski" owners, for things that have nothing to do with us. It was reported last summer that there were two "jet skis" on Songo racing and chasing loons; a warden came to the pond and observed nothing to warrant a citation. This summer, we have been reported to the district conservationist for having dumped some fill at the public boat landing. Now, the landing, in all due respect, does need some drastic help, but just because our family owns a stone and gravel business and we own that killer "jet ski," it was automatically assumed we did it. At least they could have called us and asked if it was indeed us before reporting us. For everyone's information, it wasn't us. We have been researching, along with other users of the landing, the legal way to fix it up.

In closing, we would like to add that we would be glad to see some more wardens on the area ponds and lakes. We have nothing to hide, do size of a pond.

John Brown, also a North Pond resident, spoke of the "jet skis'" effect on the shallow bottom of the pond. "They tear up the bottom," he said, and plant material then drifts onto his property, "We have to rake it up," he said.

Additionally, said Brown, when the water is high in June and July, the wakes created "raise the devil with the shoreline."

Also attending last week's meeting was Shagg Pond summer resident Jim Moran of Alexandria, Virginia, Moran is a U.S. Congressman who serves on the Subcommittee on the Interior, which recommends appropriations for the National Park Service.

The Park Service, he said, plans to ban personal watercraft in national parks for three reasons: safety and liability issues, the prohibitive cost of rule enforcement and the need to foster habitat for waterfowl. The benefits of "jet skis," said Moran, "are not worth the cost of the liability." (Forty-three states have also imposed restrictions on the craft.) Looking at the issue locally, Moran said the craft "are not appropriate for most ponds in this area." "Jet skis" are better suited to large lakes, he said. Moran also said that non-resident stantial amount of tax money to area towns. "We ask for nothing more than to leave it as much as possible as it is," he said of the ponds.

Other pond residents reiterated concerns expressed in the past about the craft, such as loud noise and frequent disregard for safe boating rules.

Train whistles, beepers also noisy But several "jet ski" owners in the audience argued for their own Eunice Packard of North Pond said her family has "jet skis," and she uses one herself. "I'm over 40, but I still want to get out there and have a little fun," she said. She questioned why no one complained about nearby train whistles and heavy equipment warning beepers, which can be heard in the early morning hours. She said the pond is changing generally, with "more houses going up and people coming in. That's the way it is, and you're going to have to deal with it," she said.

Packard said she favored controls on "jet skis," such as making parents responsible for their children's conduct on the craft.

Nancy Vandenberg, another North Pond resident, said this is not the first time pond residents have complained about increased noise. When she was young in the 1950s, she said, they objected when her family bought a 15-horsepower motor to use for waterskiing.

Firefighters battle wildfire

NORWAY--A wildfire blackened about 2 1/2 acres of forest Sunday afternoon before firefighters brought it under control, the Maine Forest Service said. A helicopter dropped water on the blaze for about three hours while forest rangers and local firefighters battled it on the ground, said Ranger Jim Downie. The fire was brought under control by early Sunday evening, but Downie expected suppression efforts to continue. "The fires are burning very deep right now, so it should be there a few days," Downie said. Downie said authorities were unsure what caused the fire to break out in an isolated area. But he said the forest floor has been exceptionally dry, and investigators were considering several possible causes ranging from lightning to careless campers. No one was injured by the fire and no property was damaged, Downie said.

Paris hires new manager

PARIS--Stephen McAllister of Oxford has been hired as Paris' new town manager. McAllister, 36, is a native of Paris, and will replace outgoing manager Jim Kane beginning Sept 28. He graduated from Oxford Hills High School in 1980, and served in the Navy. For the past three years he has been manager of systems and administration for the New England Public Warehouse in Paris. He also has 11 years of experience as a reserve police officer, seven of them with the Paris Police Depart-

Oxford County Fair next week

NORWAY--From Sept. 16 through the 19th, the Oxford County Fair-grounds will offer a variety of entertainment, including: rides with Smokey's Greater Shows, a climbing wall, the Chainsaw Man, a harness maker, racing snow machines, exhibition halls and all the animals. Ride specials will be available part of Thursday and Saturday, and all senior citizens may have free coffee and donut holes at the fair food booth.

Track breakfast planned

BETHEL--The Telstar Track Boosters will sponsor a breakfast on Sunday, Sept. 20, from 8 to 10 a.m. at the NTL Dining Hall, Broad Street, Bethel. The menu will include pancakes, scrambled eggs and bacon. Cost is $5 for adults and $2,50 for children under five. Proceeds will benefit the project to construct a track at Telstar.

Hospice needs volunteers

LEWISTON--Hospice of Androscoggin Home Health Services is seeking people interested in becoming Hospice volunteers. The Hospice provides support for terminally ill patients and their families, and includes physicians, nurses, home health aides, social workers, clergy and volunteers. Volunteers may make regular visits with the patient and familiary that the patient and the patient and the patient and ily, do errands and shopping, stay with a patient for several hours while the family caregiver gets away, provide transportation to a doctor's office, or meet other needs. Volunteers need to be non-judgmental, warm, compassionate and a good listener, and be able to respect confidentiality. They must also have their own transportation. Volunteers are especially needed during the daytime hours. A two-hour training course will be provided. For more information, call Nancy Greene at 1-800-482-7412.

Hikers not opposed to parking fees

LINCOLN, N.H.--While many local residents still oppose paying to park at White Mountain National Forest trails, out-of-town hikers appear to be taking the fees in stride. Sixteen months after the White Mountain National Forest started charging parking fees to use its hiking trails, hikers say they don't mind paying as long as the money is used to preserve the forest and its facilities. "If they need the money to maintain the parks then I think it's all right," said Lisa Engstrom, of Glen Cove, N.Y. She and her boyfriend spent four days hiking through the Presidential range in Jefferson, Gorham and Jackson. Engstrom and others interviewed at the Lincoln Woods parking lot recently mirrored the results of a White Mountain National Forest survey released in May, a year after the fees were established. More than 70 percent of the 6,189 survey respondents said they support the program. More than 75 percent also said they believe the $5 weekly parking pass and the $20 annual pass are reasonable to use the national forest. Compliance for the federal program was also strong, according to the survey. Approximately 40 percent of the cars parked on the forest displayed the pass. Those that didn't already have permits were tagged with notices asking them to pay. Half of those drivers later purchased passes, raising the compliance level to more than

Timberlands good investment

PORTLAND--Investors are showing growing interest in timberlands, which have a good track record for returns and are seen as a hedge which have a good track record for returns and are seen as a hedge against the ups and downs of the stock market. "It's becoming more popular by leaps and bounds," said Brad Vicary, a forest economist who represents woodland investors at James Sewall Co., a consulting engineering firm in Old Town. "It's a green investment." One of Maine's big landholders, Sappi Fine Paper, is planning to sell 911,000 acres of western Maine woodlands, although it's keeping its two paper mills in Maine. With the trend toward "green" investments, the buyer could turn out to be a firm interested in using forest investments to stabilize and diversify portfolios for pension funds and other long-term holdings, rather than a forest-products company. Timberlands' value tends to move in cycles that run counter to stocks and bonds, while its price moves indecycles that run counter to stocks and bonds, while its price moves independently of the real estate market, according to Vicary and others. Timberlands also have a record of paying attractive annual rates of return, from 6 percent to 12 percent after inflation.

AUGUSTA--The 1998 Fall Foliage Report will be faxed to media outlets and travel information providers every Wednesday from Sept. 16 through Oct. 14, the Maine Department of Conservation announced this week. The department's Internet site may also be accessed at www.state.me.us. Current foliage conditions are also available on the Maine Foliage Hot-Current foliage conditions are also available on the Maine Foliage Hot-line at 1-888-MAINE45. Last year the department received almost 500 e-mail messages regarding the foliage. A popular feature of last year's site that will be repeated in 1998 are photos of current foliage conditions. "I expected to get comments from people who had never seen our vibrant fall foliage before, but was surprised by the amount of e-mail I received from native Mainers now living in other parts of the country who watched our foliage peak on-line," said information director Susan Benson. An example from a California resident: "It is great to see the heillight colors of fall fill up my computer screen as I sit here longing to brilliant colors of fall fill up my computer screen as I sit here longing to be back home."

From the Bethel Police log:

A good cleaning prevents charges

At 8:45 a.m. on Sept. 7 police received a report that during the night there had been a large party off the Farwell Mountain Road, and the remains of a bonfire were still there. Police found a subject in a vehicle that was still parked at the site. The subject said he had been at the party, which was attended by more than 60 juveniles. The subject was told he was guilty of criminal trespass, littering and burning without a permit. The officer told him if he cleaned the area of debris by 3 p.m., there would be no charges filed. The subject agreed. When the officer returned later, the area was clean.

Friday, Sept. 4

At 1:05 a.m. police observed a vehicle weaving back and forth on Route 26. The officer stopped the vehicle and found the registration had expired in May. Shannon Moxcey, 28, of Bryant Pond was issued a summons for operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

Saturday, Sept. 5

At 5:30 p.m. police observed a vehicle traveling south on Route 5 at 62 miles per hour in a 45 m.p.h. zone. The vehicle was stopped, and it was found the driver's New York license had been surrendered. William J. Fortin, 41, of Cortland, N.Y. was given a summons for speeding and operating without a license.

Monday, Sept. 7

At 1:50 p.m. Richard Pickering, Jr., 32, of Hollis was issued a summons for speeding 61 miles per hour in a 45 m.p.h. zone on Route 5, and operating an unregistered motor vehicle.

At 4:45 p.m. a subject was observed in violation of the Bethel skateboard ordinance by riding his board from the Parkway to Lincoln Street. The board was taken away for 30 days.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

Rotenone

A product of tropical and subtropical plants of the legume (pea) family, rotenone is a naturally occurring botanical fish-killing agent that has been used by fisheries managers for at least 50 years.

For centuries prior to that it was used by indigenous tribes to stun fish, which would then be recovered for food.

In the dosages used by IF&W, rotenone is not considered toxic to plants or other wildlife, according to Roy Bouchard, a biologist for the Maine Department of Environmental Protection.

In 1981 the federal Environmental Protection Agency concluded: "there was no reason to restrict the use of rotenone in waters intended for irrigation, livestock consumption or recreational swimming

According to IF&W's Boland: "We do this work in the fall, the fish die, the rotenone breaks down with warm waters and sunlight (of spring) and by sometime in the middle of the spring it's basically out of the system totally. Then we restock and we're back up and running. A lot of times the fishermen will hardly miss it, especially on a pond like Overset that's closed to ice fishing."

Rainbows on the horizon? If the reclamation goes well,

Boland said, the department may also restock the pond with rainbow

Rainbows are not currently stocked by IF&W, and they are not generally found in local ponds and lakes (although a breeding popula-tion appears to be reestablishing itself in the upper Androscoggin and some of its tributaries, probably, Boland said, as a result of stocking upstream in New Hampshire.)

Overset Pond is reached by a rough, one-mile long woods road off the Willis Mills Road in Green-

The pond is currently designated as fly-fishing only, and that will not change as a result of the reclama-tion, Boland said. "We'll continue it with the same regs. The only thing we will change is that we will close it to the taking of bait." Unwanted fish species are sometimes inadvertently introduced to a body of water by people collecting bait, Boland said, "and sometimes the bait dealers see a neat little nitch for their shiners."

Boland said he also approved of landowner Dick Penley's plan to gate the road leading to the pond.

really don't have a problem with that -- for a couple of reasons: it will be equal access for everybody, and it will tend to really discourage bait dealers from repopulating the pond with unwanted species."

Penley has "still got a very positive attitude toward public access," Boland said. "They don't plan to do anything to discourage access.'

Public hearing

IF&W will hold a public hearing on the Overset Pond reclamation proposal, on Sept. 24, at Oxford Hills High School, at 7 p.m. For more information, call 657-2345.

Summer business

The Labor Day weekend just past was also busy -- contrary to what sometimes happens, he said. With people gearing up to go back to work or send their children back to school, that weekend can be slow, as families often stay home to prepare for their change in schedule, he said.

On the retail side, Ellen Whitney of Maine Line Products gift store in Locke Mills and Bethel characterized her business as "at least equally a good summer, if not better, than last summer. Both stores did well."

The Locke Mills store just concluded its first summer. "It met the expectations we had for it," said little stronger. "July and August (of this year) were good," she said. And in the restaurant department.

manager Donna Gillies of Pat's Pizza in Bethel said, "It was the best summer we've ever had -probably the best summer we will ever have, thanks to the pipeliners. We're scared about next year without them."

Business was also strong from vacationers and local people, she said, and lasted right through the Labor Day weekend. "The reason we're able to be open 12 months a year is that we have strong local support," said Gillies.

Hikers and vacationers were also brook Place, Litty Parker described in abundance in the White Mountain National Forest, according to Pat Nasta of the U.S. Forest Service. Numbers were up this summer, she said, and part of the increase may stem from interest generated through a WMNF Internet web site.

Tourism office agrees

The generally good reports from the Bethel area seem to jibe with a recent report from the Maine Office of Tourism regarding business

"While the summer tourism season got off to a slow start because of a rainy June, businesses and chambers of commerce report visits picked up considerably during July and August, and the summer of 1998 will go down as a good one overall," it said.

There are also two dozen junior varsity players. "We have a strong group of underclasssmen," said Wight. "As long as they improve, they? Il push them (the varsity)."

Subbing to keep fresh players on the field, said Wight, is a Mountain Valley Conference tradition. "I tell them (her players), 'play really well for 10 minutes and help the team," she said.

Last year's squad went 8-8, making the playoffs in the last possible position, eighth.

"We hope to better that," said Wight. "If they improve on their record, they will be in the playoffs." Some of the strongest opposition should come from teams like Hall-Dale, Jay and Leavitt.

Cross-country and golf

Telstar's smallest fall sport teams, cross-country and golf, have fewer than 10 members each.

The cross-country lineup includes juniors Jenn Shaw, Jen Howe, Lacey Hebert and Katrine Burgi, and freshmen Anna Willard, Nichole Schroeder, Joel Doyon, Josh Hamel and Francesco Gaura. Shaw and Howe are the only returning veterans. Said coach John Applin, "The others (of the girls) are showing potential, particularly Anna Willard. For the boys, all are ninth graders and just learning to Other returnees include juniors Josh Mowery and Per Sandstrom.

New to the high school team are sophomores Dan Stevens and Chuck Johnson, and freshman Josh Eickenberger.

Lunney figures that for his team to qualify for Class C playoffs, they will have to beat either Hall-Dale or Winthrop, perennial powers in the class. The Rebels' record through four matches is 2-2.

Virginia Keniston mood. On Saturday, Aug. 29, Bob and Ginny Keniston, along with Glenn and Martha Bangs boarded a bush plane at remote Lac Grandmesnil in Quebec, 100 miles north of the St. Lawrence River. This was to be the start of their return trip home after a week of trout fishing in the Canadian wilderness, a 23-year tradition for Bob and That morning as they were packing up and cleaning the camp for the next party to enjoy, it was noted that bad weather was fast approaching. The plane arrived as scheduled and a group of four from Dixfield came ashore to take their place and enjoy the wonderful fishing.

Once in the air and headed southeast, it was evident the ceiling was lowering fast. It became a case of making sure you could see mountain tops. Bush planes fly by visual flight rules -- no instruments to help see through the clouds. After 30 minutes into the flight the visibility became so poor it was impossible to pick a path through the clouds, so the pilot wisely turned back and landed where on previous trips he had noticed there was a camp. Matthew Sturgeon is only 21 years old, but a skilled flyer and exercises extremely good judgment. Matthew said, "It is better to return late than not to return at all."

Five persons, all dressed in rain gear, appeared from the camp and helped beach the plane. A sense of hospitality was instantly forthcoming. Soon everyone was in the camp and drinking coffee.

The five hosts turned out to be Roland Guerette, a body shop business owner from Montreal; Jean Montavani, a restaurant and club owner also from Montreal and Roland's partner in the camp and their plane; Jean Benard from Paris, France, a retired engineer who had worked on the design of France's La Concorde giant jetliner; and two other fellows who had been brought along to work on clearing land around the camp and do sundry

This "camp" was very spacious, with a dining table large enough to seat 10 people, gas and electric lights, gas refrigeration, hot and cold running water, hot shower, inside plumbing, gas and wood heat, gas stove and wood stove to cook on, a complete stainless steel kitchen, two-way radio, and a tape player.

In addition to all these conveniences, the ever-gracious hosts vacated two of the bedrooms so Bob and Ginny and Martha and Glenn each had a private room with comfortable beds. How's that for hospi-

What little food was left from the fishing trip was brought into camp and added to the camp's supply, which was running low. That meant someone had to go fishing. The two guys pulling stumps were more than willing to change jobs. However, this is not meant to suggest skimpy meals. The three gourmet cooks in the crowd came through in flying colors. It was fun guessing the contents of the large soup kettle that was always simmering on the stove, and it got tastier and spicier each meal, never lacking for garlic. Of course there were such things as french toast, brook trout, spaghetti, pork chops, eggs and much more, all prepared to perfection. Early in the morning of day three, Matthew, the pilot, after spending some time on the radio with weather people, announced it was time to try flying to Sept Iles, our destination.

Goodbyes and expressions of gratitude were emotionally relayed to the hosts and the DeHavilland Beaver roared to life.

The weather was still foggy and overcast. Fifteen minutes into the flight again Mother Nature took control and another landing on a remote lake. It was 7 a.m. Most of the time until 2 p.m. was spent exploring the rocky shore while hoping the breeze would shift into the west.

Finally, the ripple on the lake was coming from that direction. The noontime meal of Cheerios and peanut butter was forgotten and it was time to try again. There was a potluck supper at The Bethel Alliance Church on the 18th. It was also a birthday party for Pastor Rick. Peggy brought him into the church in a wheelchair, That got a big laugh out of everyone, even Pastor Rick. Peggy pushed the wheelchair right up to the table and he sat in it as he ate and after the supper, and we all moved into the sanctuary for the roasting ceremonies, where he sat in it again. No, he really did not need the chair, that was just part of the roasting. He is still some under retirement age, in fact quite a lot.

Pastor's sister and an aunt and uncle, and I believe other family members from away, were there to join the fun. A video was shown of when he really was young. Nancy Fox had a reading and Cindy Millett read some original poems. Pastor's sister spoke and a friend of his also spoke. The ladies trio had two songs. Pastor Rick received gifts and cards. A lot of them were jokes, but he enjoyed every minute of it as well as did the rest of us. I did not count how many were there, but I guess between 60 and 70.

Here is the last verse of a poem Cindy Millet read, and I believe wrote: "All jokes aside ad truth to tell/Dear Pastor Rick, we wish you well/For God did know just who to send/To this Maine town, His flock

Thirty-one members of the Woodstock-Greenwood Citizens and two guests were present at the meeting on Thursday. A brown bag auction was held. A delicious dinner was served by the Star Birthday Club. Next meeting is dinner out at the Bull Ring Steakhouse.

Curator Larry Billings recently framed a portrait given him by the Reagan and Bush families from the White House.

The Historical Society finds value in the past and makes it real to people today. It keeps good records of its exhibits. This is important for those doing research or simply wanting to know the extent of the society's holdings.

The society's files are primarily for use by those watching the museum, but Curator Billings will also explain them to others. The cataloging system is by no means perfect, but at least there is one, and it is systematically maintained.

Curator Billings recently met Congressman and Mrs. James Morin from Virginia. Basil Sequin introduced him to them. They were very Cecile and Maurice Lescault watched the museum recently. Be sure to attend meetings at the museum this fall and winter. They are the second Saturday of each month at 7 p.m. Topics are of general interest and refreshments are served.

Find out why you're the U in Unicel

"As someone who has lived and worked in Maine for the better part of my life, it's important to me to do business with Maine companies. That's why I was pleasantly surprised to learn that Unicel is a Maine company — with headquarters in Bangor. If those folks are anything like my sales representative here in the Farmington area, they're very fine people.

"Another thing I like is Unicel's no-charge, detailed billing. Especially since my family is on different calling plans, I really need to see who's doing the talking! Which reminds me ... I should probably change my daughter's plan to a different one! You know, having the opportunity to select from Unicel's various calling plans makes a lot of sense — no matter whether you're using the phone for business or for personal calls."

Eleanor Nelson Hi readers. I have sad news this week, as my dear sister-inlaw, Carolyn in South Paris. We have had some good times together, and we shall miss her terribly, but she is at peace now and is beside her dear husband, Walter. We give thanks to all her friends who were so good and caring to her these past few months.

Heino, passed way Friday night, Aug. 28, at

Carol Davis of California is home for a few days to be with her mother, Geneva Tripp, and her family and to attend Carolyn's services.

Sharon Traish, Aisha, Jaffer and Nawal from Massachusetts have been at their cottage at Keewaydin Lake for a few days of vacation. Aisha went back to Massachusetts a day early in order to get settled in at Boston University, where she will pursue her medical profession, studying to be a doctor.

Cheryl Barnard, Jenna and Lindsey from Virginia were here at her parents' a few days to attend the graveside services for their Aunt 'Carky.' Albert Nelson, Sr., has been busy lately delivering wood to his customers so they can be warm this next winter. There's nothing like a good wood stove to get warm by.

Linda Allen and sister RoseMary and Iva Fox visited Olive Stearns Morrell in Poland recently.
On Thursday, Aug. 27, eight members of the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, Tent 19, and honored guest, National D.U.V. President Gail Butterfield were in attendance at a meeting here at the K. of P. Hall in East Stoneham. The meeting was opened by Tent President Eleanor Nelson at 7:30 p.m. Secretary and treasurer's reports were given and accepted.

A reception is being planned for Gail on Nov. 7 at the Double Tree in cial hour and supper at 6:30.

It was voted at National Convention to adopt the Lincoln Rose as the official flowers. Seven Daughters from Maine attended the convention, which was held in Ohio in August, with two from Portland, one from Bryant Pond, one from Norway, and three from Stoneham. Gail was installed as national president by Past National President Ruth Jordan of Portland, and Sally Sawyer of Bryant Pond was installed as National D.U.V. secretary.

Plans are to be made for the 1999 National Convention to be held in ing his roof earlier this summer. He Maine and a meeting concerning this will be held on Sept. 18 at 7:15 p.m. at the home of Joyce Gouin.

Plans are for about 150 people.
Inspection of Tent D.U.V. is Bryant Pond Tent hosting the supper and meeting there.

Eloise Vail won the mystery prize. The meeting was adjourned until the next meeting at the K. of P. Hall on Sept. 24.

The outstanding dish was "Frog More Stew." The wonderful concoction consisted of shrimp, corn, boiled potatoes and Polish sausage. It was served in a large stock pot.

Back Street was jumping with many visitors for the holiday. Joe and Penny Bernier hosted a party with 30 guests. There was a great softball game, fishing, country walks and lots of fun for all.

Roy Mace, Jean and Elizabeth Bernier, John and Avis Arata visited Vi and Ray Bernier. Chris Connelly, along for the good life "Up Coun- the Camerons and Guays also enjoyed the weekend at their camps.

I recall at this time the many times I prepared for the opening day in the one-room, rural school. These little school houses, like the buffalo and horse and buggy are dim historical memories.

Once upon a time the school was the hub of the community, the haven of learning and the well-spring of all

I could learn as much from my pupils in a year as I could teach them. It was an opportunity to use my originality and initiative, which might have remained dormant in other work. So this week I "remember" and I'm glad I was a teacher.

The children learned not from books, only. They learned Right, Respect, Responsibility. So I may be justified in feeling that perhaps the world is a little better because "I taught school." I also attended a rural school during my childhood School has started and I'm sure most of the students are really happy to be back with their friends. Hope they all have a good year.

I had lunch with Laura Rand and Marcia Morse last week. They work in the office where I worked a few years ago. We try to keep in touch.

I've been out walking quite a bit 2:16 a.m. Monday, Aug. 31, since surgery. It seems real good to weighing in at a healthy 6 pounds, be able to do it without the pain. One day last week I saw Ethel Davis out taking a daily walk.

Joan Poland paid me a visit one day last week. Also, Rosalie Poland spent part of the afternoon one day recently.

West Paris Historical Society will have a New England boiled dinner on Friday, Sept. 18, at the historical building. A dance will follow with music by the Parisians. Some improvements have been made at the society building. Last Saturday some new cupboard doors were installed. Workers were Ted Jones, Gordon Stevens, Sayward Lamb, Bill Ring and Harlan.

Andover

held this Saturday, Sept. 12, from 1 to 5 p.m. at the Andover Fire Station. There will be a 50/50 raffle with tickets available at local establishments. There will be lots of food and many items are being auctioned. The benefit is being organized by Dave's church family from the Mexico this time of sharing and healing.

The school year is off and running at Andover Elementary School, APT hosted an informational meeting regarding the multi-age program last Thursday evening. It was a very helpful meeting giving details on curriculum development and expectations. Presentations were made by the classroom teachers: Mrs. Melanie Ellsworth, Kindergarten; Mrs. Kathy Conrad, Grades One and Two; Mrs. Gail Brooks, Grades Three and Four; and Mr. John Emery, Grades Five and Six. The curriculum binder that was created by this hardworking staff will be available in the near future with copies being placed in the public library and the school office. Mrs. Eileen Pew, who acted as a representative for Andover parents throughout the development of the curriculum, assures all that this information is very user-friendly and well developed.

Grandparents' Day will be held on Friday, Sept. 11, from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Andover School. Festivities will be an open house format and refreshments will be served. Don't miss this wonderful annual event.

Calvary Congregational Church Awana clubs will kick-off the season with Fall Round-Up this Friday, Sept. 11, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Awana clubs are for all children in grades K through six. For this first Round-Up meeting, clubbers may wear cowboy duds, but please remember your sneakers for the fantastic game time. For more information, call 392-1121 or 392-1273. CCC also will open its Sunday School year with a pancake breakfast this Sunday, Sept. 13, at 8:30 a.m. with the Sunday School hour Congregational Church and hosted following at 9:30 a.m. Morning wor-at the fire station. All are invited for ship follows at 10:45 a.m. Sunday School classes are available for all ages, 3 to 103.

The summer reading program at the library held its year-end celebration last Saturday, Charlie Glazier read stories and the children received their well-deserved books for completing their reading goals, Congratulations everyone. The Irish Chain Quilt was won by Barbara Adams of Andover. Christie would like to thank all who purchased tickets. Proceeds will help purchase lighting for the downstairs.

Karen and Carson MacKay enjoyed a visit with Cruz and Lynn Thurston of Phillips. A Blues concert and rock-picking activities were enjoyed by all.

The Windy Valleys Sno-Mobile Club met Tuesday night, Sept. 1, at the Warming Hut with Owen Wight presiding. Secretary Sylvia Harrington read the notes of the last meeting and took some more during the evening. Treasurer Bob Lowell brought the finances up to date and M.S.A. director/alternate Bill and Sylvia Wight reported on their 340th Maine Sno-Mobile meeting of Aug. 18 at the Elk Lodge in Augusta. Also, there was some reporting on the trails by the trail boys. A Flea Market was discussed for Oct. 10, or 11 if it rains on the 10th. Coffee and goodies were enjoyed during the meeting. The next meeting will be at the Town Building in October.

As careful readers now realize, many Newry residents, me included, now have new addresses. Those of us on the Sunday River side, that possess an RFD 3 address, now have Newry, ME 04261 at the end of our addresses. This would be great, but by the time we get it straight with all our correspondents, we'll have yet another change (#3). At some point in the future, we'll have an E-911 address with street names and numbers. That could be one month, six months, or a year or longer. Now that our mail goes through Newry, the Newry Post Office will be open longer hours. The 33rd annual meeting of the Bethel Historical Society was held Thursday evening at Alder River Grange Hall in East Bethel. After a delicious polluck supper attended by more than 40 members and friends, the business meeting was called to order by president Walter Hatch. He announced that the next meeting would be held on Oct. 1 and would be the annual "What's It" meeting. The Nominating Committee report was given by chair Amy Davis. Nominated for office were: president, Walter Hatch; vice president, Alvin Barth; secretary and clerk of the trustees, Paul McGuire; treasurer, Arlene Lowell; trustees for three years, Priscilla Walker and Lois Kilroy. The slate was elected by a motion from the floor. President Hatch thanked retiring trustees Lorrie Hoeh and Margaret Wight for their fine work on the board over the past three years.

Mr. Hatch announced that there would be a Leaf Symphony Quilt Raffle to benefit the capital campaign to be drawn on Dec. 31, 1999 and urged all to get their opportunities to win as there would be a limited number of tickets available.

The "Gift of the Month" was the Civil War diary of John Mead Gould edited by William Jordan. It was the gift of Stephen T. Seames of Worcester, Mass. John Mead Gould was a Gould Academy graduate who married a Bethel Twitchell and is buried in Riverside Cemetery. President Hatch thanked Mr. Seames for his fine gift on the society's behalf.

'A moment of silence was observed for all members who had died since the last annual meeting: Gabrielle Howe, Mildred Rackcliffe, Helen Philbrook, John Willard, Wilma Quimby, Marie Brown, Harold Chapman, Beatrice Grover, Ruth Watson, Dorothy Keddy Small, Dorothy Brinck, June Greig, Louise Clough, George Noll, Olive Anderson, John Bean, Elizabeth Blake, and Arnol Brown.

Among the committee reports heard during the evening was one from Susan Herlihy of the Capital Campaign, who announced that nearly $250,000 had been raised to date including pledges, challenges, stock, gifts, and cash. She indicated that the committee planned a number of activities during the coming year to keep the campaign in the forefront of society activities.

The president reviewed some of the highlights of the past year: launching of the capital campaign; a major exhibit, "The Way Life Should Be"; a $1000 gift from Bob and Janet Spidell, for books for the research room; a $75,000 challenge grant from the Betterment Fund, for the capital campaign; creation of a Bethel Historical Society web site; the closing on the Elms property; two grants of $1,000 each from Exxon, for a television, VCR, and stand and another for a video camera and stand; several successful special events; more than 70 new members added to the rolls; numerous items added to the collection from more than 50 donors; and the installation of the stone steps at the back entrance to the Dr. Moses Mason House.

President Hatch presented the 12th annual Marjorie MacArthur Noll Volunteer Service Award to Edna York, who was honored for her service as a guide in the museum, as a longtime member of the Special Projects Committee, as the pianist at various society functions through the years, and as a generous donor to the annual fund since its inauguration more than 15 years ago. Mrs. York was made an honorary member in 1986.

The speaker for the evening was Dr. David Richards, assistant director of the Margaret Chase Smith Library, who spoke on the history of the Poland Spring resort, beginning in the 1790s and continuing to the turn of the a.m., with the lobby being open 8 century when the first automobile arrived at the famed hotel, foreshadowing the end of an era of grand hotel keeping in Maine.

Geno Delafose's French Rockin' Boggie at Gould
"You never know which way we're coming from," says Geno De-lafose of his band's mix of Cajun and zydeco music, which successfully incorporates elements of modern country, rhythm and blues, and rock, while staying true to the traditional zydeco sound he grew up playing and singing in Louisiana with his father's legendary family band, the Eunice Playboys. Delafose and his band, French Rockin' Boogie, will kick off the Gould Academy Performing Arts Series next Thursday evening, Sept. 17, and, according to one reviewer, who found the band's music "both infectiously danceable and relentlessly lighthearted," audiences will quickly discover that "standing still is not an

Derived from two-hundred years of cultural contact among Cajun, Afro-French, and Afro-American people in south Louisiana, zydeco is a syncopated musical blend driven by the accordion and sung sometimes in French, though more often in English. Delafose, who performs fluently in both languages, is also what is known in zydeco circles as a "triple threat" -- he is a master of the piano accordion, Cajun accordion, and triple-row accordion. Regarded as a "cultural guardian with the courage to inject modern influences and themes into traditional zydeco, without sacrificing its integrity or spirit," Delafose says of his style, "I'm pretty traditional, but I can step it up when I want to."

Gena Delafose and French Rockin's Boogie will perform at Gould Academy's Bingham Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Thrusday, Sept. 17. The public is welcome, and tickets ($6 for adults and $4 for students) will be available at the door. For further information, please contact Vicki Rackliffe at 824-3575.
